Risk Management Opportunities

Excellent salary, bonus & benefits

London-based

City limits.

Good risk managers are held in high esteem by every trading organisation. So how will we prize you from your current role? Well, we'll do the usual: offer competitive salaries, good benefits and career opportunities. The difference is we also offer a lot more besides.

With over forty nationalities working together, Enron has the largest in-house commodities trading floor in Europe and our strong market position has been built upon the speed of our thought. Voted 'America's Most Innovative Company' for the last six years by Fortune magazine, and with revenues in excess of $100 billion in 2000, we're firmly established as one of the world's leading energy and communication companies.

We need versatile, ambitious individuals to drive us forward. Our Risk Management department is a high-profile breeding ground for new commercial talent, so you'll need a good mathematics-related degree with one to five years' product control/risk experience gained within an investment bank - preferably focusing on derivatives. An ACA, CIMA or ACCA qualification would also be an advantage and, as you'll be working with energy and credit derivative products as well as handling the demands of physical commodity markets, an ability to think laterally is vital.

We have a flat management structure, with a culture that's not only open to new ideas, but also brave enough to try them. Everyone enjoys as much responsibility as they can handle, and everyone is encouraged to get involved in the decision-making process. If you share our appetite for continual innovation and improvement, please send your CV and current remuneration details to William Trippett at Walker Hamill Executive Selection quoting ref: 7627.
